Wealth Partners Financial Services

Jared Thompson, owner of Wealth Partners Financial Services, had been steadily creating financial strategies and tools, implementing innovative processes, and expanding his audience outreach for the last fifteen years. Jared partnered with us to take all the things he had built to evolve his brand into something that better reflected all the things he had built Wealth Partners into.

Through many discovery sessions with Jared, employees, and clients — we worked to define the brand's purpose, personality, and position in the market. Centered on education, a unique approach, and individually-focused service — Wealth Partner's brand is all about guiding and empowering their clients — allowing them to stand out among their competitors.

We then helped bring the brand to life. Cognizant of working within our client's yearly budget, we created a brand strategy that took a phased approach to first establishing the new style for the brand, the creation of a new identity system, and an online communications standards (both visual and verbal guidelines) for all employees.

Phase two included the development of primary communication vehicles. Including, letterhead system, brochures, presentation and educational materials, and a new website.

Saving for Education

We help you explore efficient ways to fund your child's education — considering things like tuition, room and board, and tax strategies that can help you save money.

About Us

We looked at the state of the financial industry and came to one clear conclusion: it was time to make a change and put you first.

Acting in your best interest.

Our approach is as unique as you are. We're an independent financial firm who believe in serving you rather than selling you something. And we're fiduciaries, meaning we are legally obligated to act in your best interest. Why do we approach savings this way? Because we believe that success is measured in more than just portfolio increases; we believe it's measured in you.

We create a financial plan built around your needs and your concerns. We provide you with strategic solutions that offer a broad range of financial growth possibilities. And we offer a fee structure that is simple and transparent.

Molly's Gluten-Free Bakery

Mary Burgdorff, owner of Molly's Gluten-Free Bakery, came to us wanting packaging. After many discovery sessions with Mary, we recognized she needed more than just packaging — she needed a brand.

We fell in love with Mary's passion for wanting to help people who have gluten dietary restrictions — like her son with Celiac Disease. His whole life he never felt like a normal kid when it came to meal time — who wants to be laughed at when you can't have a PB&J in your school lunch? Mary's want became the center of the brand: make gluten-free bakery that looks and tastes like real food, not medicine.

And how exactly do you do that? You create a gluten free bakery that's branded like a normal fun bakery. We created an identity system, packaging, loyalty cards, and a website with an online shop to help Molly's grow beyond servicing only Southeastern Wisconsin.

We created digital content based on seasonal promotions, including website promotions and social media. We also created a recipe's section and launched it with a social contest.

4Schools

4Schools

Our client, CESA 6 came to us with a unique challenge, "help us redesign and market a more unified suite of web apps for the school districts we assist in Wisconsin to help make teachers and administrators everyday jobs more productive and saving them time to do what they do best, teach."

As an organization tasked with helping specifically educators and administrators do their jobs more efficiently and effectively, CESA 6's technology department plays a vital role in helping create and manage a variety of apps called 4Schools that do things like help monitor the progress of students with special needs, integrate a school-wide calendar, and allow for easy website updates to be made that provide better communication to the entire community each school resides in.

Unfortunately, like many older software systems, 4Schools over time could not stand up to the technological and innovative advancements occurring in the world; nor the ever-growing amount of designers and developers contributing new solutions and styles. Two things that led to an internal system that was difficult to maintain; as well as disjointed experiences by those using the apps in schools on a daily basis.

We set out working closely with the department of technology at CESA 6. We met with project managers and developers, teachers, administrators to make sure we understood how and on what level each individual involved was currently engaged with 4Schools.

We discovered the CESA6 team needed some help rethinking how they worked. If we could create a better system on the inside, it would reflect a better system on the outside. We developed something called a "Design Language System" making sure 4Schools was built on a solid foundation that allowed for growth and change long term. Fundamental to the system were documented common terminology and processes, allowing developers, designers, and project managers to communicate efficiently and effectively with one another. As well as a defined library of consistent styles and reusable components saving designers and developers time and working towards a more unified experience by those using the apps.

An app now happily used every day in school systems across Wisconsin — streamlining assignments, boosting collaboration, and foster better communication between staff, students, and parents — all making teaching more productive and meaningful.

Helping you help your students

Allowing you to focus more time on your students is the main goal of our innovative and easy-to-use web applications. Save time and improve communication with staff, students, parents, and the community when you take advantage of all that our products offer.
